

HELP FIX ALLIED HEALTH

SIGN THE PETITION

Victorian Allied Health is under threat.

Victorian Allied Health Professionals in public health are being paid thousands less than their interstate counterparts and colleagues in the private sector, while workloads and pressure continue to grow out of control.

Right now, many workers in public health face two choices:

Leave public health to go interstate or into the private sector. Or stay and be worse off.

This means Victoria's public health is losing skilled Allied Health workers to other states and the private sector. For those who remain, the result is growing workloads, burnout, and increasing pressure across the health system.

It's not sustainable. And it's not right.

That's why VAHPA is fighting for better pay and conditions for more than 40 Allied Health professions in the public sector, including:

- Physiotherapists
- Occupational Therapists
- Speech Pathologists
- Social Workers
- Medical Imaging Technologists
- Sonographers
- ...and many more.

Allied Health matters.

No more band aids.
No more temporary fixes.
It's time to properly fund and fix Allied Health.
